Tropical Sun Cleanse is a Caribbean style detox blend, typically combining bitter and digestive herbs (cerasee, soursop, dandelion, ginger). The "cleanse" claim is marketing rather than science (your liver and kidneys do that), but as a refreshing herbal blend the components are real Caribbean tradition. Drink for the flavour and cultural connection, not for biological cleansing claims.

Tropical Sun Cleanse typically contains some combination of:

- Cerasee (bitter, traditional cleansing herb).
- Soursop leaves.
- Dandelion leaves.
- Ginger root.
- Sometimes additional Caribbean botanicals.

The assessment

The "Cleanse" claim is marketing. Your liver and kidneys handle detoxification. No tea blend "flushes toxins" or "cleanses" in any biological sense.

What Tropical Sun Cleanse actually does:

- Hydrates (it's tea, adds fluid).
- Provides mild digestive support.
- Mild diuretic effect (more frequent urination, not "detox").
- Traditional Caribbean herbal experience.
- Refreshing low calorie alternative to soft drinks.

Curator Rating: 4.9/5 (good blend, oversold marketing).

- Aroma: Earthy, slightly bitter, with mild ginger.
- First sip: Substantial bitter character (from cerasee).
- Mid cup: Earthy depth with ginger warmth.
- Finish: Long, slightly drying.

vs senna based detox teas

Senna based detox teas cause diarrhoea (laxative). Avoid. Tropical Sun Cleanse is far better, no laxative.

vs Pukka Cleanse

Pukka uses nettle, lemon, green tea. Tropical Sun uses Caribbean herbs. Different flavour profiles; both gentle.
