

Iced Lemon Tea (Summer Family Jug)

From the Teas.co.uk wiki

This is the no-kettle, no-bag version of iced lemon tea: three heaped teaspoons of Lift Instant Lemon Black Tea powder stirred into 1.2L of cold water, with sliced lemon, a good bunch of mint and a few cucumber wheels dropped in. Lift is made to dissolve in cold water, which is the whole point of it, so the jug is ready in five minutes and keeps in the fridge for a couple of days. It is the easy family-table jug for hot weather, with the lemon, mint and cucumber doing the work of lifting a soluble base into something that tastes made.

Use cold water rather than boiled-then-chilled, and shower the powder slowly over the surface while you stir, about thirty seconds, or it clumps. Put the lemon, mint and cucumber in at the start so they scent the jug as it sits, and keep the ice in the glasses rather than the jug, since ice in the jug just waters it down over a day in the fridge. It pours four large glasses or six smaller ones.
