Iced Cape Chai Latte

From the teas.co.uk wiki

An iced version of the Cape Chai latte, for warm weather. The trick with any iced latte is to brew the tea stronger than usual, because the ice and cold milk will dilute it; here that means three Cape Chai Rooibos bags steeped long and hard, then cooled right down before it goes near the glass.

Poured over ice and topped with cold milk, it settles into soft layers of red chai and white milk before you stir it together with a cinnamon stick. It is caffeine-free, so it suits an afternoon when an iced coffee would be one caffeine hit too many. Use whole milk for body, or chilled oat milk to keep it vegan.
