

Dairy-Free Black Tea Latte (Without the Curdling)

From the Teas.co.uk wiki

A dairy-free black tea latte sounds simple, but tea and plant milk have a habit of splitting into grey flecks. The fix is in the method: brew Teapigs Everyday Brew strong but short, let it cool for a moment, and use barista oat or soya, which is made to hold up. Done that way it stays smooth and creamy.

It is a good, caffeine-carrying alternative to a coffee latte, with a clean malty backbone. Ten minutes, one big cup.
