Lemon-Ginger Tonic (Alcohol-Free Aperitif)

From the teas.co.uk wiki

Lemon-ginger tonic is an alcohol free drink for grown ups in the early evening: a strong brew of Loyd Boost Immunity built over ice with good Indian tonic water. The quinine in the tonic brings a clean bitter edge, which is what stops it tasting like a soft drink and turns it into something you would actually serve as an aperitif.

Brew the tea strong with fresh ginger and a strip of lemon peel, cool it right down, then build it over ice with the tonic and a little honey to balance the bitterness. A pinch of lemon peel over the top and a sprig of rosemary in the glass do the rest.
