Overnight Cold Brew Moringa Green Tea

From the teas.co.uk wiki

Cold brewing is the easiest way to make a big jug of moringa green tea, and arguably the nicest. Steeping the bags in cold water in the fridge overnight draws the flavour out slowly, so you get a smooth, naturally sweet drink with none of the bitterness hot water can force from green tea.

A strip of lemon peel and a little ginger steep in alongside for a clean, fresh edge. Makes about a litre.
