

Dairy-Free Oat Latte

From the Teas.co.uk wiki

A good oat latte at home comes down to the milk. Use barista oat, not standard, because the extra fats let it froth into a proper foam where ordinary oat milk just goes flat. Keep it below 70C too, since plant milks turn bitter if you let them get too hot.

Make a strong little shot of instant coffee, top it with the frothed oat milk, and you have a creamy, fully dairy-free latte. Makes one.
