Iced Green Mint Tea

From the teas.co.uk wiki

Cold green tea and fresh mint together are about as cooling as a drink gets, the sort of glass that makes you feel a few degrees cooler just holding it. Keep the brew gentle, with water off the boil at around 80C, so the green tea stays smooth rather than bitter, then load it with ice and a good handful of mint. It is the iced cousin of Moroccan mint tea, only lighter and unsweetened.
