Caribbean Ginger Rum Digestif

From the teas.co.uk wiki

A small, warming after-dinner drink: a strong soursop and ginger tea simmered with fresh ginger, star anise and cinnamon, then laced with a measure of aged dark rum and a little honey. The molasses and vanilla notes in a good dark rum sit beautifully against the ginger and spice, making a digestif to slow-sip at the end of a meal. There is an easy alcohol-free version too.
