

Classic Bubble Milk Tea

From the Teas.co.uk wiki

Bubble tea started in Taiwan with exactly this: strong black tea, milk, sugar and a spoonful of chewy tapioca pearls sitting in the bottom of the glass. Ceylon black is a good honest base for it, brisk enough to come through the milk and the ice. The pearls are the only real faff, and even they just need simmering and a rinse; everything after that is shake and pour.

Cook a batch of pearls, build the drink cold over ice, and sip it through a fat straw so you get tea and pearls in one go.
