Yorkshire Tea Pack Sizes: 40, 80, 160 and 240 Compared

From the teas.co.uk wiki

> Yorkshire Tea pack sizes, in short: 40 bags is 125g, 80 is 250g, 160 is 500g and 240 is 750g. Each bag holds the same 3.1g of tea, so pick the box your household will finish in a month or two.

Yorkshire Tea is sold in boxes of 40, 80, 160 and 240 tea bags, weighing 125g, 250g, 500g and 750g. The tea and the weight per bag are the same in all four, so the only question is how many mugs you get through. All four sizes are on the Yorkshire Tea shelf at teas.co.uk.

The four sizes in one table

Box	Weight	Tea per bag	Lasts at 4 mugs a day	Lasts at 8 mugs a day
40 tea bags	125g	3.1g	10 days	5 days
80 tea bags	250g	3.1g	20 days	10 days
160 tea bags	500g	3.1g	40 days	20 days
240 tea bags	750g	3.1g	60 days	30 days

The days assume one bag per mug. Divide any box weight by its bag count and you get the same answer: 3.125g of tea per bag.

The same tea in every box

Taylors of Harrogate lists these as pack sizes of one tea, not as different products. It describes Yorkshire Tea as a blend of 10 to 20 black teas from Africa and India, and gives an average of 48mg of caffeine per cup, based on 200ml of water and five minutes of brewing. Nothing about that changes with the size of the box. If you have wondered whether the blend itself has shifted over the years, see has Yorkshire Tea changed its recipe.

What does change is the cost per bag. Bigger boxes often work out cheaper per mug, but offers move around, so we do not print prices here. To compare, take the live price of each box in the shop block and divide it by the number of bags.

Which size suits which household

- 40 bags. One person who drinks a mug or two a day, a guest room, a caravan, or a first try of the blend. It is gone in a few weeks, so it is always fresh.
- 80 bags. The standard box and the easiest to store. It suits one or two tea drinkers and lasts about three weeks at four mugs a day.
- 160 bags. A couple who both drink tea through the day, or a small family. Roughly six weeks at four mugs a day, three weeks at eight. We look at this size in Yorkshire Tea 160.
- 240 bags. A busy family kitchen, a shared house, a small office or a club. A month at eight mugs a day. Our guide to running a busy kitchen on the Yorkshire Tea 240 box covers it in detail.

A simple rule: buy the biggest box you will finish in about two months. Past that, a smaller box bought more often is the better habit.

Sizes and blends beyond these four

Taylors also lists tea bag packs of 400, 600 and 1040 on its own site. We do not stock those. The largest Yorkshire Tea box we sell is the 240.

The other blends come in fewer sizes. In our catalogue:

Blend	Sizes we stock
Yorkshire Tea (original)	40, 80, 160 and 240 tea bags, and 250g loose leaf
Yorkshire Gold	80 and 160 tea bags, and 250g loose leaf
Yorkshire Tea Decaf	40, 80 and 160 tea bags
Yorkshire Tea Hard Water	80 tea bags

Keeping a big box at its best

Taylors' storage advice is one line: keep the tea in a cool, dry place away from direct sunlight. With a 160 or 240 box, that means keeping the bulk of the bags sealed in a cupboard and decanting a week's worth into a caddy by the kettle. The card box itself goes in your paper and cardboard recycling.

750g. That is 3.125g of tea per bag, the same as every other size.

Not by weight or by name. Taylors lists 40, 80, 160 and 240 as pack sizes of the same Yorkshire Tea, and each bag holds the same amount.

How many cups do you get from 160 tea bags?

160 mugs at one bag each. At four mugs a day that is 40 days of tea.
